Summary

I'm a full-stack developer, since starting my career as a software developer just was some high-level language such as VB and QBasic, but now, every day we face a new course of programming action of a new language or framework, some of them we call libraries and others which are important are frameworks.

During these years, I worked with lots of employers and employees with different personalities and they taught me lots of things and experiences such as project management and Ui Ux, on the other hand, I'm so keen on adopting new technologies and new programming languages.

In the end, I want to tell you I'm just not a Senior Web Developer which could learn everything about it and specialists at node.js, react.js and next.js and .net core, fortunately, cause I have a passion for every programming language such as java and swift I'm specialist with this two lovely language.

in the last 14 years, I never feel bad or can't do, whatever happened in my journey in my carriers.

I always try to do my best as a developer or project manager or technical assistant.

I worked remotely with these countries :

my English knowledge is good but as usual, I'm always studying English until I full fill my English knowledge as a native person.
